What is the Issue raised in supervision:

Below is a list of factors that can be considered when reviewing the issues raised in supervision. Some or all may need to be considered in helping to determine an action plan and possible learning goals.

1. Client issues (What is the immediate issue to be addressed in helping to manage the presenting client issues)?

2. Supervisee issues (how are these issues impacting on the supervisee)?

3. Intervention issues (what has been tried, what has been helpful and not helpful, what further help do i need to determine intervention)?

4. Organisational issues (are there organisational issues that need to be considered that are getting in the way of managing the client issues, or that need to be activated to help manage the situation)?

5. Wider system issues (What wider system issues do i need to consider, what questions do i need to ask to address these issues)?

6. Supervisor - supervisee issues (are there relationship/process issues to be addressed)?

7. Training issues (from my review do i need to undertake extra reading/training to help develop my skills and knowledge)?
